CURRENT NEWSPAPERS IN THE BENSON COLLECTION

Compiled by Michael Glaser

The Benson Collection receives both Latin American newspapers and those published in the United States intended primarly for Latino readers. Current newspapers, which are uncataloged, are shelved in the Periodicals Reading Area in alphabetical order by title, while issues from recent years are located in room 3N, arranged alphabetically by country and then by title. Older newspapers are housed in a storage facility; inquire about them at the Information Desk. Some Latin American newspapers are sent by surface transportation, and they may arrive a month or more after their publication dates; others, sent by airmail, arrive more promptly. The list below cites newspapers in their original formats which are currently being received at the Benson Collection. Information includes the title, place of publication, and the edition which the library receives. Please consult the online catalog (UTCAT) for the earlier years of these newspapers as well as other newspapers received on microfilm, by searching under the title of the paper.

HISPANIC ART: CURRENT PERIODICALS

Compiled by Laura Gutiérrez-Witt and Carol W. Russell

The titles listed below are selected art periodicals emanating from the major cities of Latin America. Also listed are several titles which chronicle Hispanic art in the United States. Both types of periodicals usually include articles, reviews and news on contemporary artists, movements, exhibits and trends although some of the Latin American titles will also on occasion publish retrospective studies on the art of the preColumbian and colonial periods. Archaeological and anthropological journals dealing with preColumbian topics have been excluded. Other sources of information on the current Hispanic art world are cultural and intellectual journals published in Latin America and general art periodicals published in the United States. These types of publications have also been excluded from this list. Dates cited in the bibliographical entries are the beginning dates of publication, and they are included when known.

THE CHICANA: BIBLIOGRAPHIES ON THE MEXICAN AMERICAN WOMAN

Compiled by Elvira Chavaria

The Chicana, or the Mexican American woman, as a topic has not been researched with as much depth as the Mexican American population in general. Below are listed some major bibliographies specifically on the Chicana, as well as general bibliographies which provide source material on the Chicana in subtopic form. Despite some overlap, these works are valuable sources of information which together provide background material and recent information on the Chicana in her many roles.

E 184 M5 Z991 1976 LAC

Cabello-Argandoña, Roberto. The Chicana: A Comprehensive Bibliographic Study. Compiled and edited by Roberto Cabello-Argandoña, Juan Gómez-Quinoñes, Patricia Herrera Durán. Los Angeles, California: Chicano Studies Center, Bibliographic Research and Collection Development Unit, 1975.

A list of almost 500 books, periodical articles, journal citations, government documents, films and serials by and about Chicanas. Many works are annotated. Divided into serials, general readings, Chicana and women's liberation movement, civil rights, culture and cultural processes, demography, economics, etc. Contains author and title indexes. Excellent compilation.

Z 1361 M4 C33 1976 LAC

California. University. Chicano Studies Library. Bibliography of Writings on La Mujer. Compiled by Cristina Portillo, Graciela Rios, Martha Rodriguez. Los Angeles, California: Chicano Studies Library, 1976.

Arranged alphabetically by author, this bibliography deals primarily with the Chicana experience in the U.S. Titles of works on Mexican women are included only if the work is related to experiences of the Chicana. Part I contains reprinted articles, student papers, dissertations, and books; Part II has serials that deal specifically with Chicanas, Mexicanas, and women in general. Subject index.

E 184 M5 C345 LAC — California. University. University Extension. Department of Daytime Programs and Special Projects. New Directions in Education: Estudios Femeniles de la Chicana: A Curriculum Guide. Los Angeles, California: University Extension, University of California, Daytime Programs and Special Projects, 1974.

"A Chicana Bibliography" on pp. 45-63 is divided into the following categories: books and pamphlets, articles, government publications, unpublished materials, and films. Specifically geared to studies on history of the Chicana, La Chicana in literature, and La Chicana in higher education. Good general reading lists are provided throughout the publication.

HQ 1426 C48 1976 LAC — Chicana Research and Learning Center. La Mujer Chicana: An Annotated Bibliography. Austin, Texas: Chicana Research and Learning Center, 1976.

320 citations compiled as a guide in Chicana Studies and as an information source for researchers of the Chicana. Divided into subject sections: Chicana Publications, Chicana Feminism and El Movimiento, Education, Health, History, Labor/Employment, La Cultura, La Familia, Machismo, Politics, etc. Most items are articles which appeared in Chicana or Chicano publications. Reference list provided for locating sources.

HQ 1426 C6847 LAC — Cotera, Martha P. The Chicana Feminist. Austin, Texas: Information Systems Development, 1977.

At the end of this collection of essays, the bibliography lists citations to bibliographies on the Chicana and to works on the Chicana in history, philosophy and literature, politics, social conditions, and feminism. Citations to books, articles, papers, and newspaper articles are alphabetically arranged by author. Major works are annotated.

E 184 M5 C673 LAC — Cotera, Martha P. Educator's Guide to Selected Chicano Materails [sic] and Media Resources. San Antonio, Texas: Intercultural Development Research Association, 1976.

Pp. 50-60 contain approximately 120 citations of articles, books, bibliographies, journals, some documents, and papers. Divided into areas: bibliographies, history, philosophy and literature, politics and feminism, and social conditions. Some annotations. Includes publications on Mexican women as they relate to the Chicana.

Z 1361 M4 D865 LAC — Durán, Patricia Herrera. The Chicana: A Preliminary Bibliographic Study, compiled by Patricia Herrera Durán and Roberto Cabello-Argandoña. Los Angeles, California: Chicano Research Library, Chicano Studies Center, n.d.

273 alphabetically arranged entries by author; divided into categories of books, documents and papers, articles, theses and dissertations, films, and newspapers. Some annotations. Subject index.

E 184 M5 G657 175 LAC — Gómez—Quiñones, Juan. Selected Bibliography for Chicano Studies. 3rd ed. Los Angeles, California: Chicano Studies Center--Publications, 1975.

Section on the Chicana on p. 47 contains twenty-eight unannotated citations to articles, books, journals, and bibliographies.

ARGENTINE HISTORY

Compiled by Sonia Merubia

This list is intended as a preview of a bibliography on Argentina which will be published in the Spring as one in the series of the General Libraries' Selected Reference Sources. The books included here were all published in Buenos Aires and will form a portion of the history section of this bibliography. They concern Argentine history in general and constitute some of the more interesting Spanish language titles.

F Caldas Villar, Jorge. Nueva historia argentina. Buenos Aires: Editorial
2831 Juan Carlos Granda, 1975.
C17
1975 An illustrated history in four volumes which has as its salient feature
LAC the good bibliographies which are provided at the end of each section. In addition a whole volume is devoted to the pre-Revolution era.

Z Cordero, Carlos J. Los relatos de los viajeros extranjeros posteriores a 1626 la Revolución de Mayo como fuentes de la historia argentina. Buenos Aires:
C78 Institución Mitre, 1936.
LAC

Gives descriptions of 54 travelers' accounts. Provides a transcription of the title pages of all editions as well as of the Spanish translation if there is one. If only certain chapters of a work discuss Argentina, these are pointed out and summarized, otherwise the whole work is generally described.

F Diccionario histórico argentino. Buenos Aires: Ediciones históricas argen-2804 tinas, 1953-54.
D5
LAC A dictionary covering historical personages, events, places and organizations. Most of the articles in the six-volume set are about a page in length and include short bibliographies.

qF
2831
H54
LAC

Historia integral argentina. Buenos Aires: Centro Editor de América Latina, 1970.

This is a wonderfully illustrated six-volume set with full page color reproductions of important paintings. Many historians have contributed to the text and some are quite well-known. The volumes themselves are organized by traditional historical periods beginning with "De la independencia a la anarquía" and concluding with "La clase media en el poder".

qG982
L575h

Levene, Gustavo Gabriel. Historia ilustrada de la Argentina. Buenos Aires: Compañía General Fabril Editora, 1963.

A fascinating work. The text is based entirely on the illustrations which are taken from the historical period under discussion. Some are in color. An index to all the illustrations is included.

F
2831
L495
LAC

Levene, Gustavo Gabriel. Nueva historia argentina; panorama costumbrista y social desde la conquista hasta nuestros días. 5. ed. Buenos Aires: Osvaldo Raúl Sánchez Teruelo, 1974.

A four-volume well illustrated social history of Argentina. The illustrations include facsimilies, color prints of original paintings and maps.

G982.005
N887

Nuestra historia. Buenos Aires: Centro de Estudios de Historia Argentina, v. 1, no. 1-   , 1968- .

An excellent journal devised primarily for university level history students and history teachers. Includes essays, transcriptions of original documents, and book reviews. Unfortunately, there is no index.

F

LAC

Romero, José Luis. Breve historia de la Argentina. Buenos Aires: Editorial Abril, 1978.

Organized in four parts, this short history by an eminent historian is valuable for its conciseness. A good book with which to begin the study of Argentine history.

THE MEXICAN ELECTION, 1982: SOURCES OF NEWS AND ANALYSIS

Compiled by Sonia Merubia

On July 4, 1982, Mexico will hold a presidential election in which the victory of its ruling political party, the Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI), is virtually assured. Nevertheless, the course of the campaign will be worth following because, unlike the election of 1976, the PRI will face opposition from a right-wing party and a left-wing coalition, both of which will test the efficacy of a 1976 political reform. The right-wing Partido Acción Nacional (PAN) is the strongest challenger, having polled one-third of the votes in Mexico City's 1973 municipal elections. Also evident, but not as far-reaching have been the achievements of the various left-wing parties, who have recently won some municipal elections in Guerrero and Oaxaca. These groups are now in the process of forming a united front.[1]

The following list of current periodicals and newspapers should enable readers to keep abreast of Mexican political events during the important months to come. Current issues of those starred are located in the Periodicals Reading Room, while those not starred, as well as all back issues are located in the stacks.

JOURNALS

*G056.8

THE FALKLAND/MALVINAS ISLANDS: A SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY

Compiled by Sonia Merubia

In the introduction to their three-volume Historia completa de Las Malvinas (1966) the editors cited a survey which they had conducted among a cross section of Argentines concerning the archipelago. They concluded that the desire to regain sovreignty over the islands constituted a strong unifying factor for the Argentine nation and served to foment feelings of patriotism and nationalistic fervor. Recent events would certainly substantiate these conclusions. Thus, in order to provide information on a timely topic, the following selected list is intended to acquaint interested persons with the material available on the Falkland/Malvinas Islands at the Benson Latin American Collection.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

Instituto de Historia Argentina. Colección de documentos relativos a la historia de las Islas Malvinas. 2 v., Buenos Aires: 1957 (Documentos para la historia argentina 25, 28). Dirección de Bibliotecas Populares. Soberanía; contribución bibliográfica a la afirmación de derechos argentinos sobre Las Malvinas, islas y sector Antártico. Buenos Aires: 1975. This list was compiled from works available in various public libraries in Argentina and, as the subtitle indicates, includes only those works which affirm Argentina's right over the Malvinas. No annotations are provided.

PETROLEUM IN LATIN AMERICA: SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Compiled by Laura Gutiérrez-Witt

Although 1859, the year the Drake well in Pennsylvania blew in, is generally considered the beginning of the oil industry, the petroleum industry in Latin America became important only after 1890. The most dramatic expansion of oil exploration and production in Latin America, however, occurred after World War I. Through the subsequent years, two Latin American countries--Mexico and Venezuela--have maintained world prominence as oil producers despite the fact that practically all Latin American nations have explored and found oil reserves in their territories. Below are listed selected current sources of information on the topic of petroleum in Latin America, but the library has much other pertinent historical documentation, particularly from Mexico.

Background Surveys

A number of studies which provide historical surveys of the oil industry in Latin America have been recently published. Included here are selected publications which deal with both the political and economic aspects of the petroleum industry.

Periodical Publications

Periodicals often provide the latest news of new fields, production, technological research, and state-of-the-art equipment. Listed below are several general titles issued by news-gathering agencies. The second category includes publications of publicly-supported research institutes and those of state-owned oil companies. Beginning with Argentina in 1935, the organization of state oil companies became the norm in Latin America. The publications of these companies, therefore, provide not only official production and budgetary figures but also policy decisions and legislation. The beginning date of each periodical is given, if known.

MIGRATION IN LATIN AMERICA

Compiled by Laura Gutiérrez-Witt

National and international migration in Latin America has become, over the last twenty years, the focus for intensive interdisciplinary research. Anthropologists, political scientists, sociologists, geographers, economists, and demographers have tended to publish their migratory studies in journals and monographs within their own disciplines. The selected items in this bibliography reflect the multi-disciplinary nature of migration literature. Works on Latin American migration to the United States are omitted. Other materials may be found in the card catalog under the following subject headings: URBANIZATION - [Country]; RURAL-URBAN MIGRATION - [Country]; MIGRATION, INTERNAL - [Country]; EMIGRATION AND IMMIGRATION; CITIES AND TOWNS - GROWTH; LABOR SUPPLY; and [Country] - CENSUSES.

CENTRAL AMERICA: SOURCES OF CURRENT INFORMATION

Compiled by Ann Hartness-Kane

Current information about events and opinion in Central America--the geographic area usually considered to encompass Belize, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Panama--is often elusive. The most up-to-date sources available are probably weekly or bi-weekly newsletters and daily or weekly newspapers, although a useful newspaper clipping service and an annual summary are also represented in the English and Spanish language publications cited below. The beginning dates of publication are given, when known. All of these publications are located in the Benson Latin American Collection.

GRENADA: BACKGROUND AND RECENT EVENTS

Compiled by Anne Jordan

Grenada, an island of some 300 square kilometers in the British Windwards, achieved its independence from Great Britain in 1974. International attention focused on Grenada in March, 1979, when Maurice Bishop of the New Jewel Movement took control from Prime Minister Eric M. Gairy in a coup. In October, 1983, this government was overthrown and Bishop, along with others, was executed by the People's Revolutionary Army; shortly thereafter, 2,000 U.S. Marines and Army Rangers invaded Grenada. Once again, it was in the headlines. The titles listed here will supply some of the background information needed to understand these events, and some reactions by the domestic and foreign press to them.

LATIN AMERICAN POPULATION CENSUSES

Compiled by Susan Russell

Census publications from Latin American countries are often difficult to locate, to acquire, and to use. The year chosen for a census varies widely from country to country, and there is often a time lag of several years between the time that a census is taken and the time that the data is published. The following list reflects the Benson Latin American Collection holdings of the most recent national population census materials available in this library as of January 1986. New titles arrive on a continuing basis, so the card catalog should be consulted under the name of each country, followed by the word "census" and subdivided by the year the census was taken, i.e., MEXICO--CENSUS, 1980. Additional volumes of multi-volume census reports are added to the Collection as they are published, so that the shelves should always be checked to determine what is available.

CURANDERISMO AND THE MEXICAN AMERICAN COMMUNITY

Compiled by Gilda Baeza

Curanderismo and related folk medical practices among Mexican Americans continue to be an area of great interest in a multitude of disciplines: anthropology, folklore, sociology, psychology, medicine, and history. Despite the interest, it remains a relatively unresearched area of study, and sources of information are difficult to locate. The following is a selective list of sources which are located in the Benson Latin American Collection. For the sake of brevity, the list is limited to those works which focus on curanderismo and folk medicine among Mexican-Americans in the United States.

BF 1 H576 LAC	Arenas, Silverio; Cross, Herbert; and Williard, William. "Curanderos and Mental Health Professionals: A Comparative Study on Perceptions of Psychopathology." Hispanic Journal of Behavioral Science 2, no. 4 (1980): 407-421. Notes the difference in the perception of psychopathology between the two types of therapists.
BT 732.5 J3 B7 LAC	Brooks County Historical Survey Committee. The Faith Healer of Los Olmos: A Biography of Don Pedrito Jaramillo. Falfurrias?: 1972. A brief account of the ministry of healing and charity espoused by the South Texas legendary curandero.
PS 508 M4 G758 LAC	Castoñón García, Juan. "Healer Roles, Society and Healing Efficacy: An Anthropological Essay." El grito del sol 4, no. 1 (1979): 75-85. Considers the spiritual nature of traditional folk medicine and contrasts it to the practices of standard Western medicine, particularly as it relates to the cultural role of the healer versus that of the physician.
GR 110 N6 C45 LAC	Chavez, Tibo J. "Herbal Medicines of the Lower Rio Grande." In New Mexican Folklore of the Rio Abajo. Portales, N.M.: The Bishop Printing Co., 1972, pp. 1-41. A compilation of over eighty remedies offered by curanderos and/or old timers of the Rio Abajo region of New Mexico. Based on personal interviews.

SAMPLING OF SPANISH-AMERICAN NOVELS IN ENGLISH TRANSLATION

Compiled by Jane Garner

Translations offer the opportunity to broaden one's experience with ideas and cultures expressed in a language other than one's own. Included in this list are various novels of thirty-nine notable authors from the Spanish-speaking countries of Latin America and the Caribbean which have been translated into English, some more than once. Ranging from the first novel published in part in 1816 through those of the present day, they represent a variety of themes and literary movements. The list is divided into four sections according to the author's date of birth.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION: THE EARLY YEARS

Compiled by Anne Jordan

Three decades have passed since Fidel Castro began the Cuban revolution. The intervening years have seen the publication of accounts by participants, journalists, historians, biographers, and writers of fiction; the reliability and skill of these writers varies considerably. For the reader who is unfamiliar with the events of the armed rebellion characteristic of the first phase of the revolution, 1953-59, here is a sampling of some of the literature about it, as presented in eyewitness accounts and fictional treatments. Castro's "road to power" began with a series of struggles between the Cuban government, led by Fulgencio Batista, and its foes. The rebellion was launched with an unsuccessful attack on the Fortress Moncada on July 26, 1953, which was followed in September by a mass trial of its leaders, after which Castro went into exile in Mexico. Castro returned in the yacht Granma in November, 1956 and built the Rebel Army around a nucleus of men and women in the highlands of the Sierra Maestra. Batista was defeated militarily and departed Cuba on New Years Day, 1959.

MEXICAN IMMIGRATION TO THE UNITED STATES:

RECENT INFORMATION SOURCES

Compiled by Laura Gutiérrez-Witt

Over the last fifteen years Mexican immigration to the United States has been the topic of much discussion, research and publication. Governmental policy makers as well as academics have sought to analyze and elucidate the background and reasons for this demographic movement. The legislative initiatives to regulate and normalize immigration to the U.S. from Mexico and other countries culminated in the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-603). The most current information on the new law and its effects on Mexican immigration is still only available in newspapers and journals.

The titles and sources listed below represent only a selected number of items available at the Benson Collection. Other important monographs may be found in the Public Catalog under AGRICULTURAL LABORERS--SOUTHWESTERN STATES; ALIENS, ILLEGAL--U.S.; ALIEN LABOR, MEXICAN--U.S.; LABOR SUPPLY--U.S.; MEXICANS--EMPLOYMENT--U.S.; MEXICO--EMIGRATION AND IMMIGRATION; U.S.--EMIGRATION AND IMMIGRATION.

HUMAN RIGHTS IN LATIN AMERICA

Compiled by Ann Hartness

The contemporary concept of human rights has evolved over many centuries, but especially since World War II and the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations in 1948. Human rights issues have come increasingly to the fore in Latin America in the past thirty years as countries undergo economic and social change. They are a major concern today, both in the region and in the international community observing it. The materials below are a selection of those available in the Benson Latin American Collection, with emphasis on recent publications, although earlier materials are available. See the Online Catalog or the Card Catalog under "HUMAN RIGHTS--[Name of country]" or "CIVIL RIGHTS--[Name of Country]" for additional publications.

BORGES IN TRANSLATION

Compiled by Sonia Merubia

The stories and poems of Jorge Luis Borges have been translated into many languages. This is a bibliography of his fictional works in English translation. For those who are interested in comparing translations, it is worth noting that several of Borges' works have been translated into English more than once. For example, "The Circular Ruins" appears as the work of one translator in A Personal Anthology and as that of another in Labyrinths. The same occurs with "Death and the Compass" and other stories. The materials listed below are available in the Benson Latin American Collection.

Borges, a Reader: A Selection from the Writings of Jorge Luis Borges. Edited by Emir Rodríguez Monegal and Alastair Reid. New York: Dutton, 1981.

This collection of stories and poems is organized into four sections: "The Writer," "The Dictator," "A Brief Return to Realism," and "Appendixes." The last section supplies a chronology of the author's life, as well as a bibliography of Borges in English. The editors selected the best English translations when these were available. When this was not the case, translations were prepared for this edition. Notes in the appendix provide the original title of each work, as well as other information about it.

ECONOMY OF THE TEXAS-MEXICO BORDER

Compiled by Anne H. Jordan

Border studies are attaining prominence in institutions in the United States and Mexico. This list of recent books and studies places special emphasis on the Texas-Mexico segment. For more references to immigration and the economic issues raised by it, see Biblionoticias, no. 30 "Mexican Immigration to the United States." Other material on this topic can be located in the Public Catalog under these subject headings: U.S.--BOUNDARIES--MEXICO; MEXICO--BOUNDARIES--U.S.; and the names of specific U.S. or Mexican states, cities, or areas followed by --ECONOMIC CONDITIONS; --INDUSTRIES; and --COMMERCE. In addition to specific place names, broader terms such as RIO GRANDE VALLEY, and SOUTHWEST, NEW can lead to more information.
